If a family member earns income outside Poland, the income is calculated on the basis of the average foreign currency exchange rate, announced by the President of the National Bank of Poland, from the last working day of the calendar year from which the income of the family members is the basis for determining the right to a social benefit. The documents must obligatorily be translated by a sworn translator.
- e. The student who has started their own family and is not financially independent, and the spouse is not a student and does not have any sources of income, may receive a social benefit based on the student's parents' income. The student's family then includes their spouse and child(ren).
- f. For the student who was raised in a foster family, after reaching the age of majority, only the income earned by the student is considered as income for the scholarship purposes.

- f. the parents' income if the student is financially independent.

In order to calculate income in the student's family, all income earned by the student and the student's family members in the calendar year preceding the academic year in which the student applies for financial aid is added up. The monthly income per person in the student's family is calculated by adding the student's family members' and the student's income, and afterwards dividing it by the number of persons in the family at the time of submitting the application and by the number of months.

When calculating the amount of income, the amount of adjudicated maintenance allowance for a child, student or other member of the student's family is taken into account.

When a family member has maintenance adjudged but does not receive it or receives in an amount lower than that determined by a court judgment or settlement, the family income includes the maintenance in the amount received. To confirm the amount of maintenance, a certificate of the body conducting the enforcement proceedings on the partial ineffectiveness of the enforcement of maintenance and the amount of the maintenance enforced must be presented.

The non-taxable income includes benefits from the Maintenance Fund.

The student's sibling or child over the age of 26 is not considered as the student's family member even if they are dependent unless they have a decision about disability.
